The Jewish Cook

One night a Jewish cook bakes cookies. The cookies are for Shabbat. He makes chocolate chip cookies, fruit cookies, sweet cookies and salty cookies. He also makes cookies with no sugar. He sells them in his bakery.

The news is that the Jewish cook makes the best cookies. Everyone comes to buy cookies before Shabbat. The rav buys chocolate chip cookies for the kids. The school children come to buy sweet cookies. Abbas buy salty cookies. Old men buy cookies without sugar. Imas buy a mix of all the different cookies for everyone to eat.

One day before Shabbat the wind blew and the leaves flew. Few people came to the bakery to buy cookies. The Jewish cook was very sad that few people came. He knew some old men that prefer cookies with no sugar for Shabbat. He made a bag of cookies for each man. He took the bags to the old men so they'd have good food for Shabbat on this cold stormy, snowy day.

The Jewish cook put a note in each man's bag. This is the note:

Shabbat Shalom!
I hope you like the good cookies. They don't have sugar. I know it is hard for you to come to the store on this cold stormy day.
Stay indoors and keep warm.
Good Shabbos!
